

Bio – Scott Bushee

Scott Bushee, is a graduate of University of Hartford with a B.S.C.E and is currently a Principal Engineer leading the State Highway Design Unit of the Connecticut Department of Transportation (CT DOT). He is a licensed Professional Engineer and has been with CT DOT for over 30 years. Mr. Bushee has led Interstate Highway Interchange designs, many intersections safety and operation upgrades and a numerous roadway designs involving general safety improvements, complete streets initiatives and upgrades for state of good repair on Connecticut's roadways. He has also led the design for several miles of multi-use trail completed in Cheshire, CT on the Farmington Heritage Canal Trail and is currently leading 5 miles of design on the same trail network in Plainville, CT. Mr. Bushee has led the designs for 6 completed roundabouts on state roadways for CT DOT, 6 more roundabouts in the design process on a roundabout corridor. Mr. Bushee also leads CT DOT's Roundabout Committee and Co-Chairs the Complete Streets Committee.

